

Animals in the Library Policy

Animals, except assistive or service animals such as guide dogs used by handicapped persons, are prohibited within any EODLS library premises. An exception is made for the use of animals supervised by a program presenter who is participating in a library programming activity or a library activity sponsored by the library and supervised by a library staff member.

Example of exceptions: a zoo handler who brings a zoo animal to a library sponsored story time, staff holding a turtle race as part of a summer reading program activity, a small aquarium maintained by the library for the enjoyment of children and families.
